

The path of the disciple.

by rev. Carol pierman

Humanity has rounded the deepest level of incarnation and is moving into higher frequencies of evolve-ment on our journey home. The wheel of life is spinning faster and the drama continues.

The purpose of the disciple is to become truly conscious sometime along this journey. To be conscious is to accept each experience as it is, without reaction, regret, comparison or denial. Such feelings are based on the past, which we have already experienced. The richness of life is in the present, the sacred time of now.

Acceptance and forgiveness are the healers of the past. What was, was - what is, is, - and i stand in the sacred moment of my life's creative choice. A torn and distracted life of drama often drives us toward the life of the disciple. We simply get tired of it all, and choose to live in a different, conscious reality.

Guidance has given me some suggestions, ways of living in order to move further along on this path.

Be awake, think, hear and see in the opposite way of the past, as part of fine tuning your senses. Practice getting in touch with your "deep feeling nature" rather than the commonly used "emotional body". The deep feeling nature

Is like a still pool of sacred water, which simply reflects the image, sound, and impression of the soul.

The signs of the zodiac most associated with the path of the disciple are, taurus, leo, scorpio and aquarius. They are called the fixed signs because cosmic electricity used them as gateways and centers of force to create a universe. Yes, they are tenacious, but without them the four pillars of space would topple. Taurus is the beauty of the earth, leo, the love and courage to walk this path, scorpio the power of transformation and aquarius the power of distribution. They are also the Signs of ezechiel's vision in the old testament of the bible. We see their image in some form in all cultures. We can use these energies to understand universal law and walk the path of the disciple; in union and harmony with the purposes of god, the cosmic artist.
